Photo: Pixabay by Alexas_Fotos Even if you didn't play with Barbie dolls as a child, you've most likely heard of this iconic doll. Created in 1959 by Ruth Handler, the Barbie doll was intended to serve as an inspiration and role model for little girls. Marketing of these Barbie dolls also began in 1959, and television ads have increased sales of these dolls. But it's not just Barbie dolls that people love, like Ken dolls, dream houses and fancy cars were (and still are) a big hit. Other notable performances of Barbie Barbie, Malibu Barbie, Barbie Surgeon and Barbie Gold Medal.Due to the success of Barbie dolls, the fan club was created, as well as the Barbie convention for fans. Diversity has also played a huge role in the Barbie universe, with a collection of dolls of the world showcasing different Barbie dolls from different countries. These dolls also spawned movies, video games, songs and TV shows, as well as Barbie smartphone apps. And if fashion is your thing, the New York Barbie runway fashion show was created in 2009 in honor of the iconic and beautiful costumes of Barbie dolls. Image © 2021 InfoSpace Holdings, LLC, toy manufacturers system1 learn a hard lesson about Wi-Fi-enabled dolls, action forms and building kits: they can be easily hacked. A security researcher successfully hacked into Mattel's Wi-Fi-enabled Hello Barbie doll, accessing system information, Wi-Fi network names, internal MAC address, account IDs, and MP3 files. This information can be used by a hacker to find out which house the doll belongs to, allowing someone to breach the Wi-Fi network and recover any recorded information. The highly touted Hello Barbie uses technology developed by startup ToyTalk, which uses machine learning to conduct a two-way conversation between the doll and its owner, in other words, a childish version of Siri or Cortana. I was able to get some information that I probably shouldn't have, Matt Jakubowski, a security researcher who hacked Hello Barbie, told NBC Chicago. You can take this information and find out about a person's home or business... It's only a matter of time until we can replace their servers with ours and submit it to say whatever we want. Although ToyTalk did not dispute the claims that Hello Barbie could be hacked, he insisted that this was not a cause for concern. A spokesperson told NBC Chicago that the information that was discovered did not identify the child, nor did it threaten any sound of the child saying... We believe that parents should feel confident about their child's privacy with Hello Barbie. Still, this is not likely to be the case: After Hello Barbie's debut at the Toy Fair in New York, the advoca group found the technology seriously scary and launched a petition to put down the dream. As Fast Company wrote earlier this year, people were worried that Barbie would always be on, always listening. Oren Jacob, CEO of ToyTalk, told Fast Company in an emailed statement that the researcher in question had found an intricaciess intricacies to gain access to Which doll and hello barbie companion app already share with each other, which is available directly to parents directly in this app. No major features of the doll or online service have been violated. Mattel and ToyTalk are not the only telecommunications companies responsible for placating concerned parents this week. Hong Kong-based toymaker VTech suffered a major data breach in early November, and the news was made public over Thanksgiving weekend. Hackers broke into the company's app store and stole data from more than 5 million customer accounts. The stolen information included user names, encrypted passwords, email contact information, download history of specific accounts, and answers to users' security questions. [via NBC Chicago] Update: This article has been updated with a statement from ToyTalk. Age: 2+ This party for all girls is a dream come true for those who love to pretend that their older sister is real. To make, fold a piece of pink construction paper measuring 9x 12 in half and trim the edges with scissor-edged scallops. Cut out the heart from a piece of purple construction paper and glue to the upper right corner of the card. Place the Barbie dress (or accessory) on the card. After placing it, use a pin to hit two small holes in pink paper on both sides of the waist of the garment. Attach to the card, threading the pink ribbon through the holes and tying it around the dress in a bow. Cut out a rectangle of 3 1/2 x5 from the remaining piece of purple paper, fill in the party information and glue to the card. Feel in a padded envelope to protect your dress. Be sure to ask guests to bring your favorite Barbie and maybe some outfits. As the kids arrive, let's get a tea-party miniature (food and accessories) from Sculpey or Fimo clay. Have some ready-made samples at hand to give girls ideas. When finished, all bake hardening items according to the instructions on the package. String edible necklaces using licorice strings and O-shaped candies or cereals. Let the girls sit in a circle and everyone talks about their lalka. They may also want to play dress-up with their Barbie. Fill a Barbie-themed mug with a cellophane bag full of brand new logos; tie with pink ribbon. Every girl's dream came true! Be sure to use a craft doll (not a real Barbie) so that the cake does not divide into the middle. Craft dolls have a stick instead of legs. They are available in supply shops and pastry shops. Preparation and decorating time: 1 hour 1 box (18.25 ounces) yellow cake mix 1 can (16 ounces) vanilla frosting 1 can (16 ounces) strawberry-flavored icing * 1 Tbs. Small pink flower decorations 1 tube (.68 ounces) pink writing gel 1 craft doll Heat oven up to 350°F. Lubricate one 4-cup and one 2-cup glass measuring cup with vegetable cooking spray. Prepare the dough according to the packaging instructions. Pour 3 1/2 cups of dough into a larger measuring cup and the remaining dough over a smaller one. Bake dough 25 to 30 minutes and larger 35 to 40 minutes, or until toothpicks placed in the centers comes out clean. Transfer the dough to the rack; cool completely. Spoon 3/4 cup vanilla icing into a cake bag fitted a small ordinary writing tip (#8) and 1 cup of pink icing in a pastry bag equipped with a simple ribbon tip. Turn the chilled dough over the chopping board and level the countertops. Place a large cake on a ing ch ingle and place the smaller dough on top, forming a doll skirt. Insert the doll inside, arms raised for easier decorating. Trim the dough from the waist of the doll to the round shape of the dress. Use canned vanilla frosting to create a wide V-shape on the front of the dress. Press small pink flowers on the frosting. Spread strawberry icing on the rest of the doll's dress and her torso. Distribute as smoothly as possible. With white icing in a confectionery bag, suction wavy decorative pattern on the dress. S pipe small white dots along the front base of the dress. With pink icing from the cake bag, pipe the edge of the ribbon along the bottom of the dress. Lower shoulders of the doll and finish the top of the dress with pink frosting. Use pink gel to make small dots on the pink area of the dress. * Instead of strawberry icing, you can use another can of vanilla icing. Shade to any pastel color with food staining. Coloring.
